Administrative histories

British Columbia Women's Institute (BCWI). - 1909-

The British Columbia Women's Institute (BCWI) was founded in 1909. This founding was initiated by Laura Rose, who was invited by the BC Provincial Government to extend her Women's Institute organizing activities in Alberta and Ontario to British Columbia. The objective of organizing Women's Institutes in BC was to support settler women in household and family management, food production and preservation, and other farming and homestead activities.

Following an initial survey tour, Rose organized the first fifteen BC Women's Institutes: Gordon Head, Lake Hill, Sooke and Otter, Metchosin, Tynehead, Coquitlam, Matsqui, Chilliwack, Agassiz, Summerland, Salmon Arm, Nakusp, Kaslo and District, Nelson, and Cranbrook. Geographical coverage expanded and in 1911, and branches were organized into four districts: Vancouver Island, Lower Mainland, Okanagan, and Kootenay. These aggregated districts were overseen by an Advisory Board appointed by the BC Department of Agriculture. At the Board's inaugural meeting, August 14-15, 1911, the BCWI motto "For Home and Country" was adopted.

Between 1919 and 1929, achievements included the establishment of the British Columbia Crippled Children's Hospital, the Queen Alexandra Solarium, and the Otho Scott Fund. At mid-century, the BCWI influenced the provincial government to name the Dogwood as the official provincial emblem. In the decades to follow, efforts focused on education, fundraising, and activism relating to agricultural sustainability and child welfare.

As of 2023, the BCWI is headquartered in Barriere, BC. The BCWI, along with other provincial Women's Institute organizations, are connected to the national organization, the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada (FWIC).

Federated Women's Institutes of Canada (FWIC). - 1919-

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada (FWIC) is the head organization of the provincial Women's Institutes in Canada. After local and provincial bodies of Women's Institutes were established, the national organization was realized in 1919 in Winnipeg, Manitoba. The first president of the FWIC was Judge Emily Murphy. As stated by the official FWIC website, a national, united organization allowed for greater representation and a greater voice for the Women's Institutes in advocating for women's rights, rights to education, health care, and resolutions around the environment, and community development between the 1930s-1970s. In contemporary times, the FWIC continues to advocate for domestic education while also maintaining goals to support community projects, environment conservation, family equality, and gender equality.

Associated Country Women of the World (ACWW). - 1929-

The precursor to the ACWW was founded 1929 in London, England as the International Conference of Rural Women. By 1933 in Stockholm, Sweden the organization had assumed its current name and mission, which is to “represent rural women, facilitate better access to better information resources, [and] fund community development projects and training programmes.” The ACWW remains headquartered in the UK. Its first president was Mrs. Alfred Watt (born Margaret Rose Robertson), who had previously served as a member of Metchosin Women's Institute (South Vancouver Island) and secretary of the Women's Institute Advisory Board for British Columbia. Per the ACWW official website, the organization “holds Consultative Status with the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), and the UN Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).”
