

Additional finding aids and guides: Douglas Coupland
fonds

Two finding aids/guides are contained in this document:

1. The finding aid to the first accession to the Douglas Coupland fonds in 2008. Researchers may find this to be of interest because it lists the files in both the archivist-imposed series order, as well as the original received order.
2. A guide to the subject terms used in the description of the 2012 accrual to the fonds. Please see our blog for details.

Biographical Sketch

Douglas Coupland was born December 30th, 1961 on the NATO base in Baden-Söllingen, West Germany. After Coupland's father completed his military service in 1965, the family settled in West Vancouver. There, Coupland attended elementary and high school. After graduation, Coupland moved to Montreal to study sciences at McGill University. Returning to Vancouver a year later, Coupland entered the Diploma of Fine Arts program at the Emily Carr Institute of Art and Design (ECIAD). Studying three-dimensional art, Coupland also compiled and wrote several editions of ECIAD's experimental student newspaper exhibited his first art installation entitled Wave Particles and Beams in an ECIAD student space. In 1984, the first published piece of writing by Coupland appeared in the short-lived weekly, Vancouver Voice. After graduating from ECIAD, Coupland won a scholarship to study Japanese business science at the Japan America Institute of Management Science in Honolulu. He earned an honors degree after this one-year course and returned to Vancouver briefly in 1986.

Although best known as a novelist, Coupland is also an accomplished graphic designer, journalist, visual artist, playwright, and filmmaker. After Coupland's year of study in Hawaii, he moved to Japan in 1986 and worked as a designer and researcher for the publishing company, Magazine House. Returning to Vancouver in 1987, Coupland was hired as a writer for Vancouver magazine. Coupland's first-ever article about "Generation X," defined as the generation of people born – after the baby boomers – in the 1960s and 1970s, was published Vancouver in September 1987.<sup>1</sup> Also in 1987, the Vancouver Art Gallery hosted Coupland's one-person art exhibition entitled A Floating World. Later that year, Coupland began writing for Western Living Magazine and The Vancouver Sun. In 1988, Coupland moved to Toronto to write for the alternative business magazine Vista. Along with other articles, Coupland developed a regular "Generation X" column and comic strip, animated by Paul Richove. Having read these pieces, literary agent Peter Livingston embraced Coupland's concept and helped sell it as a book proposal to the American publishing company, St. Martin's Press.

Originally intended as a non-fiction “handbook” for Generation X, the novel Coupland wrote while living on an advance in Palm Springs can be considered trendsetting in a number of ways. In addition to the main narrative, the book introduced elements of graphic design, pop-art and wordplay to the novel genre. The book attained critical and popular success over the summer of 1990, and by the end of the year, the Generation X concept had become a major cultural phenomenon. Since Generation X, Coupland has published seventeen major literary works: ten fiction and seven non-fiction.

In the 1990s, Coupland also began writing, producing and appearing in various experimental film and television projects. He produced 6 short moving image art pieces in 1994 that aired on MTV. Also in 1995, Coupland helped to write a documentary about himself entitled Close Personal Friend. Since then Coupland has been involved in more than a dozen film, television and theatrical productions.

In the past ten years Coupland has returned to visual arts, utilizing diverse media and experimenting with various forms. In the late 1990s, Coupland developed a website entitled Coupland.com. The website combined elements of Coupland’s prose (lesser-known articles and journal-style postings) with scanned collages and other digitally rendered multi-media images. Arguably one of the first ‘blog’ projects undertaken by a well-known writer and artist, Coupland.com was well received in the nascent web-design community of the mid-1990s. The visual elements of Coupland’s website marked the beginning of Coupland’s return to three-dimensional and visual art forms. Around the year 2000, Coupland developed a series of furniture pieces for the furniture company Pure Design. Also in 2000, Coupland created an art installation entitled Spike. The installation, which featured human-sized plastic objects debuted in Vancouver and was later shown at the Totem Gallery in New York. Since then, Coupland has created or contributed to more than twenty major visual art projects, installations and exhibitions. While working in various capacities over the course of his career, Coupland has maintained consistent creative focus in two areas: 1) literary works with a strong visual sensibility 2) visual art (particularly sculptural) projects that challenge aesthetic conventions.

Coupland has earned a number of awards and distinctions since the 1990s. In 2001, Coupland’s Alma Mater (ECIAD) awarded him an Honorary Doctorate of Fine Arts. Over the course of the 2000s, three of Coupland’s books (City of Glass, Terry and Souvenir of Canada 2) were nominated for BC Book Prizes, awarded by the Association of B.C. Booksellers. In 2005, Coupland was awarded a Vancouver Arts Award for his writing accomplishments. In 2006, the Leacock Association short-listed JPod for its annual Leacock Memorial Medal for Humour. Finally, as part of British Columbia’s 150th anniversary celebrations in 2008, the Royal British Columbia Museum named Coupland one of the 150 most influential people in British Columbia’s history.

Scope and Content

This fonds comprises records created by Coupland from approximately 1980 to 2008. They are related to all aspects of Coupland’s life and career. Among other types of records, the fonds includes:

- Drafts of Coupland’s major literary works
- Personal and artistic photographs

Section 1: Fonds and Series Level Descriptions

- Visual art material (such as collages, paintings and printouts of digital collages)
- Technical notes and designs for Coupland's website
- Conceptual sketches and designs,
- Annotated books used during Coupland's speaking events
- Personal and administrative correspondence
- Personal notes/memos, sent or received from Coupland's family friends and staff
- Awards
- Notebooks
- Fan correspondence
- Press clippings featuring work by and about Coupland
- Ephemera collected by Coupland
- Audio/visual material

Series have been determined during archival processing and are primarily based on the various activities that Coupland has engaged in over his life and working career (see the Arrangement note below for more details about series arrangement). The series are:

- Digital projects
- Dramatic projects
- Fan mail and related material
- Journalism
- Lectures, interviews and readings
- Literary projects
- Personal and administrative affairs
- Press clippings
- Research and notes
- Visual art projects

Physical Description Note

Fonds includes:
30 m of textual and graphic material
ca. 1425 photographs : multiple processes
ca. 40 audio and videocassettes
ca. 30 objects

Photographs include digital images printed on commercial photo paper.

Associated Material Note

Section 1: Fonds and Series Level Descriptions

Approximately 100 books, most written by Coupland, arrived with the fonds. These books can be found in the UBC library catalogue and accessed by searching for “Coupland Collection.” Included in the Coupland Collection are: advanced readers copies of Coupland’s works, many foreign-language editions and a few books written by others and collected by Coupland. Appendix 3 of this finding aid contains a list of all of these books.

Arrangement Notes

The first accession of the Coupland fonds arrived in 69 boxes. While much of the material had little arrangement, an initial inventory describing some items in each box arrived with the accession. This initial inventory can be viewed by researchers, and is located in RBSC’s Douglas Coupland fonds Accessions File.

Each original box contained items related to many aspects of Coupland’s activities, and were from a particular time period identified by Coupland. There was no apparent order within each box. The archival assistant therefore assigned series while processing the fonds. Series are loosely based on the arrangement of Coupland’s projects on his website, <http://coupland.com>.

As records were transferred into archival boxes and folders, the archival assistant recorded each item or file’s location within the original box that arrived at RBSC. A list of each file’s location within the original Coupland boxes (in other words, the original order of the fonds) can be viewed by researchers and is located in the Douglas Coupland fonds Accessions File. Section 3 of this finding aid, entitled “File Inventory by Box-File Number” is a loose approximation of the Coupland fonds’ original order.

Finding Aid Notes

This finding aid has three primary sections and three appendices:

- Section 1 contains file and series level descriptions.
- Section 2, entitled “File Inventory, by Series,” lists each file and item according to the series in which it is located (a draft of Generation X, for example, will be located in the “Literary projects” series listing). Further explanatory notes can be found at the beginning of the “File Inventory by Series” section on pages 21 and 22.
- Section 3, entitled “Inventory by Box-File Number,” lists each file or item by in the ascending order of the box in which the file is physically located. The series that each file or item is intellectually a part of is indicated by a series code (so, a file which is in the “Visual art projects” will have the series code “VP” attached to it). Further explanatory notes, including a legend of “series codes” can be found at the beginning of the “Inventory by Box-File Number list” and is located on pages 69-70.

Section 1: Fonds and Series Level Descriptions

- Appendix 1, entitled “Drafts of Major Works List” provides access to drafts of Coupland’s significant literary and dramatic projects according to the title of the final project (a draft of the film Everything’s Gone Green, for example, can be found under that title.) Users should note that this list is not exhaustive, and should rely on the “Literary projects” and “Dramatic projects” series lists in Section 2 of the finding aid for a complete listing of all of Coupland’s writings contained in this accrual of the fonds. Appendix 1 begins on page 114.
- Appendix 2, entitled “Visual Artwork Listed by Title of Final Projects list” provides access all of the material contained in the “Visual art projects” series, listed according to the title of the final project. Users should note that this list is not exhaustive, and should rely on the “Visual art projects” series list in Section 2 of the finding aid for a complete listing of all visual art related material contained in this accrual of the fonds. Appendix 2 begins on page 126.
- Appendix 3, entitled “Coupland Collection Bibliographic List” contains a bibliographic list of all books that arrived with the Coupland fonds, and then were removed and entered into UBC library’s catalogue. Appendix 3 begins on p. 131.

Accrual note

Further accruals are expected.

Series Level Descriptions

---

Series Name

Digital projects

Dates of Creation

1994-2007, predominant 1994-1997

Physical Description

50 cm of textual documents

50 cm of graphic material

ca. 100 photographs

Scope and Content

The majority of records in this series consist of textual, photographic and graphic material related to the earliest iterations of Coupland's website. In 1996, Coupland launched Coupland.com. This website incorporated prose pieces, various digital renderings of artwork he had created in the past and digital images and collages created specifically for the website. Material created for the website also influenced Coupland's later literary and visual art projects.

Finding Aid Note

Series list begins on p. 23 of the finding aid

General Note

Dynamically preserved versions of the early Coupland.com website can be viewed at the http://web.archive.org/web/\*/http://coupland.com.

Explanatory Notes and Legends

- This section of the finding aid lists the objects and files contained in the Douglas Coupland fonds according to their series described describe in sections of the finding aid (the “Visual art projects” series, for example).
- Within each series, files and items are listed in the ascending order of the boxes in which they are physically located (so, if one item is in Box 003, it will come before the item that is physically located in Box 009)
- When items have a box number without any following file number, it means the item is located within that box, but is not enclosed within a folder.
- When box numbers have an abbreviation after them [e.g. 101(OV)], it indicates a special type of storage requirement. The legend for these special types of storage boxes can be viewed in the “Box Type Legend,” on the next page.

Explanatory Notes and Legends

- This section of the finding aid lists the objects and files contained in the Douglas Coupland fonds according to the box file list in which they have been physically arranged.
- Each file or item entry in the list below includes 4 columns:
  - A short description of the file or item
  - The box and file number in which the file or item is physically located
  - The year(s) in which the file or item was created
  - The 'series code.'
- The series code indicates which series for each file or item (a draft of Generation X, for example, has the series code LP, which stands for “Literary projects” series). The legend indicating the meaning of each code can be viewed on the next page.
- When items have a box number without any following file number, it means the item is located within that box, but is not enclosed within a folder.
- When box numbers have an abbreviation after them [such as 101(OV)], it indicates a special type of storage requirement. The legend for these special types of storage boxes can be viewed on the next page.

Douglas Coupland Fonds – Subject Access Points

The following is a list of taxonomic subject access terms (think of them as “tags”) added by the arranging archivists to aid researchers in navigating the materials held in the Douglas Coupland fonds (2012 accrual only). They have been organized into subject groupings that replicate the division of series found in the fonds, though please note that in some cases there will be crossover – for example, the tag “Terry Fox” is used for all projects related to Terry Fox (including Coupland’s book Terry), though it appears under the Visual arts heading. Notes (such as “see also”) have been added [in square brackets] where relevant.

To use these terms in ICA-AtoM: Click on the subjects link, located just below the search bar: This will redirect you to a list of all subject access points used in RBSC descriptions. Using the list below as a guide, navigate to the tag you wish to view and click on it. If you have any further questions, please consult RBSC staff for aid in navigation.
