Fonds Description

Agriculture Club fonds. – 1928-1935.

1 volume.

Administrative History

Established in 1928/29, the Agriculture Club succeeded the Agricultural Discussion Club and the Livestock Club at the University of British Columbia. Student members of the Faculty of Agriculture felt that the work of the old clubs overlapped to such an extent that more could be accomplished if they were amalgamated into a single organization. At the outset the club had three primary purposes. First, it would encourage debating and public speaking amongst students in the Faculty of Agriculture and also oversee the selection of teams for inter-faculty debates. Second, it would arrange for outside speakers to come to campus to talk on agricultural topics. Third, it arranged for evening meetings in the homes of different members at which agricultural topics could be discussed.

Scope and Content

The fonds consists of one bound volume containing 57 pages of Agriculture Club minutes for the period 1928-1935.
