Administrative history / Biographical sketch

Note

Anna Banana was born on 24 February 1940 in Victoria, British Columbia, Canada. She is an artist known for her participation in the Mail Art network, performance art, writing, and work as a small press publisher, producing the almost 50 year running Banana Rag, VILE magazine from 1974-1984, International Art Post, and various artistamp editions. She has lived in and operated out of Victoria, San Francisco, Vancouver and the Sunshine coast. She has also toured internationally on a number of occasions, predominantly through Europe and North America. She herself considered her work to be “a costume and the creation of a character,” and called herself an “incurable collector.”

After graduating in 1957 from Victoria High School, she attended the University of British Columbia from 1958-1963 and graduated with an elementary academic teaching certificate. After this, she taught for five years, in public schools for two and then at the Vancouver New School for three. At Vancouver’s New School she was first called Anna Banana by students, and she noted that the name stuck after falling into a crate of bananas at a party. In the late 1960s she became disillusioned with her life as a wife, mother and teacher, and relocated to the Esalen Institute in Big Sur, California for a period of 18 months, where she learned massage.

After her stint at Esalen, she moved back to Victoria, supporting herself through massage workshops and batik making. In August 1971 she “went bananas” and declared herself the Town Fool of Victoria, continuing to hold this post until 1972. During this period she would often go to schools with painted rocks and set up voluntary arts and crafts instruction for students, under the Anna Banana pseudonym.

She would issue degrees in “Bananology” (i.e. the art of being bananas) to participants, and this continued for many years to come. During this period she wrote an article for Maclean’s magazine which describes her rejection of consumer culture in these years, living in a cabin with no running water for $35 a month, on an income of around $25 a week. She began to publish the Banana Rag newsletter in 1971 in order to contact, involve and inform the general public about her aims and activities in Victoria at the time. One of these reached some Vancouver based artists who had begun to correspond within the network, and Banana was quickly introduced to the International Mail Art Network by artist Gary Lee Nova (AKA Art Rat), beginning her decades long engagement with mail art. Her first requests were that mail artists send her banana related items, including images and general information – of which she collected more than 1200 over the course of her career. Networkers who provided these items were awarded a Masters Degree in Bananology and a note.

By August 1973 she had moved to San Francisco, landing a job at the SF Bay Guardian. In her time in San Francisco she organized the first Banana Olympics in 1975, explored performance art alongside a number of Dadaist compatriots, and published VILE magazine in February 1974 in response to a comment made in FILE magazine saying that mail art was “Quik-Kopy Krap”. VILE would eventually have 7 editions, with Bill Gaglione, her partner at the time, publishing 3 of them, culminating in a special issue called About VILE in 1983. Anna and Bill Gaglione would go on to tour Europe with their “Futurist Sound” performances, from September to December 1978.

In the mid-1970’s, Anna began to create her own stamps, in response to a mail art invitation. When, in the 1980s, she wanted to begin monetizing her activities, she requested that networkers pay for her Banana Rag subscription in order to maintain contact with her. By 1986, she began to look to stamps as a way of increasing the income generated from her activities, producing multiple editions of various artistamps, into the mid-2000s, under the issuing authority of a fictitious “Bananaland”. While working in production department of Intermedia Press from 1983 to 1985, she learned full-colour printing, which she would go on to use to issue International Art Post, which ran from 1988 to 2011.

In 1981 she moved back to Vancouver, British Columbia, around the same time divorcing Bill Gaglione (an event which she would call the “Banana Split”). In 1980 she held the 2nd Banana Olympics in Surrey, British Columbia, and in 1985 she legally changed her name to Anna Banana. This period stands out for her production of artistamps, although she remained an avid networker and performance artist. She curated performance art shows such as Artropolis, and engaged in performances such as “Wild Women” and “World Series”, as well as other performance art shows on tours through North America and Europe. In the 1990s, she began the Special Research Institute, where she performed goofy dada-esque research projects, such as “Proof Positive That Germany Is Going Bananas” (1993), “A Survey of Banana Culture in Victoria BC” and “But Is It Art?” (2011). She led the institute under the name Dr. Anna Freud Banana. In 2001, she began creating Artist Trading Cards, and would continue to trade these at various events throughout the 2000s.

Anna moved to the Sunshine Coast in British Columbia in 1995, where she currently lives.

Scope and content

Fonds contains materials arising from Anna Banana’s activities in the Mail Art network, her collecting of published materials and artworks, her performance art, exhibitions of her work and others, promotion of her activities, the production of various publications including VILE magazine, and the creation of visual art including artist trading cards, artistamps, collage, drawings and paintings. Materials were created in Victoria and Vancouver from 1964-1973, San Francisco from 1973 to 1982, Vancouver from 1982 to 1995 and the Sunshine Coast from 1995 to 2020, as well as on various tours and travels throughout this whole period. Materials are often focused on the neodadaist movements of San Francisco in the 1970s and beyond, as well as involvement in the Mail Art Network and performance art, and Anna's personal and professional life.

The fonds is divided into 10 series: Mail art and correspondence, Interactive/performance art, Anna Banana's publications, Artworks, Artist Trading Cards, Artistamps, Exhibitions, Photographs, Press, Collected publications. Records include textual materials, particularly letters, postcards, books, periodicals, zines, and other published materials; graphic materials such as envelope art, photographs, collage, xerox art, ink and pencil drawings, and watercolour; and other items such as CDs, DVDs, and various artefacts.

Notes

Title notes

Immediate source of acquisition

Acquired from Anna Banana in 2021.

Arrangement

Intervention by the archivist was required, as boxes often contained random assortments of records. Mail art and correspondence series was generally cohesive, but the rest could be found dispersed throughout their original storage locations. Arrangement was done on the basis of Anna's main activities. Further arrangement notes available on a series and subseries basis.

Related material

Artworks and material exhibited by the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria's 2015 exhibit Anna Banana: 45 years of fooling around with A. Banana are in the collection of the Morris and Helen Belkin Art Gallery (UBC). Audio-visual materials from the Anna Banana fonds are also at the Morris and Helen Belkin Art Gallery.

Series descriptions

Mail art and correspondence

Date: 1964-2018, predominantly 1971-2018 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Series is made up of correspondence and mail-art related items received and collected by Anna Banana from the late 1960's to the 2000s. The series reflects Banana's involvement in the Mail Art movement (through what was then called the Mail Art Network – referring to a global network of artists who communicate through the post as an act of decentralization of artistic communication among the arts community) as well as her own personal mail. Beginning in the mid 60's, mail art was a movement inspired by the Dadaists and futurists of the early 20th century, and made popular by notable artists such as Ray Johnson, as well as artist groups such as Image Bank and the New York Correspondence School. It remains a highly collaborative and decentralized global movement, with artists like Banana sending out, receiving, and manipulating artworks through the mail. It focuses on small form artworks, including rubber stamps, artistamps, decoration and adornment of letters and envelopes, chain mail and other creative forms.

Subject matter includes mail-art received through the Mail Art Network, personal mail to friends and family, and collected invitations to participate in mail art shows, publications and magazines, as well as catalogues of artists displayed in mail art shows, publications and magazines. Media in this series varies greatly due to the nature of the mail art movement, and the lines between textual and graphic records are blurred, so that many letters, envelopes and other classically textual mediums are often decorated with the use of paints, stamps, drawings, collage and other mixed media.

The series is arranged into 11 subseries using Banana's existing filing system: Original mail art network, 1990s Mail art (Part 1), 1990s Mail art (Part 2), Mail art Fin de Siecle 2000, 2000s Mail art (Part 1), 2000s Mail art (Part 2), Mail art final years, Personal mail, Mail art show and publication invitations and catalogues, Unfiled mail, and Envelopes.

Physical description: 12.53 meters of textual records, 563 photographs and other materials

Arrangement:

It is uncertain why, after 1990, Banana began to restart her filing systems every few years. Her original arrangement is retained in the sub-series division. Mail art related correspondence was divided into a number of chronologically based sub-series, arranged either alphabetically or by country. Banana also distinguished these from her personal mail, various received mail art show and project invitations and catalogues, as well as unsorted and unanswered mail.

Original mail art network

Date: 1964-1991, predominantly 1971 to 1991 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries contains mail art and correspondence received and created by Banana through the 1970s, 80s, and early 90s. This period is marked by her engagement with the early Mail Art Network, including prominent artists and networkers such as her then partner Bill Gaglione (later Picasso, also known as Dadaland), Ray Johnson, Guglielmo Cavellini, Buster Cleveland, Irene Dogmatic, Pat Travenner, Art Rat (aka Gary Lee-Nova), Judy Hoffberg, General Idea, Dick Higgins and others. Items in this subseries are predominantly letters and envelopes, often decorated, but also include photographs, drawings, xerox art, found objects and small sculptural items, collage, and other visual mediums, often integrated into the letters and envelopes.

Physical description: 4.65 meters of textual records and other materials

Arrangement:

Subseries reflects Banana's original arrangement, with files arranged alphabetically, separating mail from significant correspondents into their own files. Within each alphabetical section, files are arranged chronologically.

1990s mail art (Part 1)

Date: 1990-1999, predominantly 1992-1998 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was created and collected from 1992 to 1998. Banana at this time continues to collect and engage with mail art, but also was beginning to shift towards a practice which could provide her with a more stable income, therefore restricting her mail art activities to active subscribers of her various publications. During this time, the scope of the mail art network is shifting. While many influential network pioneers were dying, including Cavellini in 1991, Ray Johnson in 1995, and Partz and Zontal of General Idea in 1994, many other artists shifted their focus elsewhere, causing mail art to change. Many networkers also attempted to sell their archives or determine ways to make a living off their network of artist correspondents, which is also reflected in Banana's mail art and correspondence activities. Significant discussions about the role (and erasure) of women in histories of mail art occur at this time, and Banana is often central to these discussions.

Items in this subseries are predominantly letters and envelopes, often decorated, but also include photographs, drawings, xerox art, found objects and small sculptural items, collage, and other visual mediums, often integrated into the letters and envelopes.

Physical description: 52 cm of textual records and other materials.

Arrangement:

Subseries reflects Banana's original arrangement, with files arranged alphabetically, separating mail from some correspondents into their own files.

1990s mail art (Part 2)

Date: 1986-1994, predominantly 1992-1994 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was created and collected from 1992 to 1994. The contents differ little from that of 1990s Mail Art (Part 1), and continues to reflect Banana's involvement in later stages of the mail art network. Items in this subseries are predominantly letters and envelopes, often decorated, but also include photographs, drawings, xerox art, found objects and small sculptural items, collage, and other visual mediums, often integrated into the letters and envelopes.

Physical description: 37 cm of textual records and other materials.

Arrangement:

It is uncertain why this was separated from the other subseries of this time period, but it was stored distinctly from Banana's 1990s Mail Art (Part 1) and file naming conventions differ. Subseries reflects Banana's original arrangement, with files arranged alphabetically, separating mail from some correspondents into their own files.

Mail art - Fin de Siecle 2000

Date: 1996-2000, predominantly 1999-2000 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was created from 1999-2000. While the internet had been present previously, more and more correspondence is conducted virtually during this period, with discourse occurring which questions the validity of email as “true” mail art, which is reflected in much of the material. Printing also becomes a digitally sourced endeavor, with more mail art reflecting access to stylization made available with programs like Microsoft Word and Adobe Photoshop.

Items in this subseries are predominantly letters and envelopes, often decorated, but also include photographs, drawings, xerox art, found objects and small sculptural items, collage, and other visual mediums, often integrated into the letters and envelopes. Banana would often print out emails as well, especially those which were distinctly related to the question of mail art and its transition into a digital sphere, and received much correspondence and art obviously created through digital means.

Physical description: 35 cm of textual records and 4 colour photographs

Arrangement:

Subseries reflects Banana’s original arrangement, with files arranged by country of origin. It is uncertain why files were sorted by country during this period, rather than her previous and future distinction by alphabet.

2000s mail art (part 1)

Date: 1995-2004, predominantly 2000-2003 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was created between 2000 and 2003. It is made up of mail art and other correspondence received by Banana through the Mail Art Network during this time. Discussions of the validity of mail art online continue. Banana keeps fewer correspondents during this period and beyond, focusing much of her energy on maintaining existing relationships.

Items in this subseries are predominantly letters and envelopes, often decorated, but also include photographs, drawings, xerox art, found objects and small sculptural items, collage, and other visual mediums, often integrated into the letters and envelopes.

Physical description: 55 cm of textual records and other materials.

Arrangement:

Subseries reflects Banana's original arrangement, with files arranged alphabetically in letter files, with some files separated into significant networkers. File naming and storage for this period were different from earlier and later groupings, so distinction as separate subseries was maintained regardless of similarities of contents.

2000s mail art (part 2)

Date: 2000-2008, predominantly 2004-2008 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was created from 2004-2008 while Banana was living on the Sunshine Coast. It is made up of mail art and other correspondence received by Banana through the Mail Art Network during this time. A significant portion of correspondence in this series are between Banana and existing friends and colleagues who have continued to engage with the mail art network, albeit a different looking network to the one that had existed previously.

Items in this subseries are predominantly letters and envelopes, often decorated, but also include photographs, drawings, xerox art, found objects and small sculptural items, collage, and other visual mediums, often integrated into the letters and envelopes.

Physical description: 75 cm of textual records and other materials

Arrangement:

Subseries reflects Banana's original arrangement, with files arranged alphabetically, with some files separated into significant networkers. File naming and storage for this period were different from earlier and later groupings, so distinction as separate subseries was maintained regardless of similarities of contents.

Mail art - final years

Date: 2006 to 2018, predominantly 2008-2016 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was created from 2008-2016. It is made up of mail art and other correspondence received by Banana through the Mail Art Network during this time. This subseries contains some of Banana's last interactions with the mail art network, and Banana's interactions with existing friends and colleagues continue to predominate its contents.

Items in this subseries are predominantly letters and envelopes, often decorated, but also include photographs, drawings, xerox art, found objects and small sculptural items, collage, and other visual mediums, often integrated into the letters and envelopes.

Physical description: 1.12 m of textual records and other materials

Arrangement:

Subseries reflects Banana's original arrangement, with files arranged alphabetically, with some files separated into significant networkers. File naming and storage for this period were different from earlier and later groupings, so distinction as separate subseries was maintained regardless of similarities of contents.

Publication status:

published

Physical description:

Includes: 39 photographs: colour and black and white prints, various sizes 2 CDs 1 Foam Artwork

Personal mail

Date: 1967-2016 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries reflects Anna Banana's separation of personal correspondence from her mail art network activities. Correspondence from some individuals located in this subseries can also be found elsewhere, and much of her personal correspondence might also be considered mail art. The series was created between 1967 and 2016. Much of the correspondence is made up of greeting cards from friends, letters to and from family members, as well as correspondence relating to Banana's romantic endeavors.

The series arises out of distinctions that Banana made in her own filing system and has not been changed. It is generally made up of textual materials such as letters, cards, postcards and envelopes, but also contains graphic and photographic materials.

Mail art show and publication invitations and catalogues

Date: 1972-2004 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries includes records of invitations and catalogues Banana received for various mail art shows and publication over the course of her involvement with the Mail Art Network, as well as some works which she compiled for inclusion in those shows. This includes letters of invitation directly addressed to Banana, open calls for submission, lists of participating artists, show posters and booklets, and packets of mail art sent for specific shows or publications.

Materials include show catalogues, posters, invitation letters, postcards, zines, envelopes, and graphic materials.

Physical description: 1.65 m of textual records and other materials

Arrangement:

The sub-series is arranged chronologically, beginning in 1972 and continuing into the mid-2000s.

Publication status:

Unfiled mail

Date: 1976-2000, predominantly 1984-2000 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries is made up of miscellaneous boxes of mail art and other related items which Banana collected or received but did not file over the course of her career. Many of these items were set aside in boxes for future filing, or it was noted that items were unanswered. "unanswered correspondence" (dated 1985-1986) previously had a tag line "stashed in '86". "UNANSWERED MAIL ART" was noted to have been boxed in 1998.

Materials include show catalogues, posters, invitation letters, postcards, zines, envelopes, facsimiles, artistamp sheets, news articles, maps and travel guides, photographs, and graphic materials.

Physical description: 2.05 m of textual records

Arrangement:

The sub-series is arranged chronologically, beginning in 1976 and continuing to the late 1990s. Each file represents a period of unfiled mail, collected and set aside for future processing.

Publication status:

Envelopes

Date: 1978-2018 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries is made up of envelopes, collected between 1978 and 2018. While it is uncertain why envelopes were separated and maintained as a separate series, although it is likely some were used for in various shows as examples of Mail Art. Envelopes played a large part in many mail art shows and often the subject of shows themselves. They are important mediums in the proliferation of mail art in all periods.

Envelopes are often heavily decorated with artistamps, rubber stamps, paintings and drawings, and other materials.

Interactive/performance art

Date: 1970-2017 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

From 1971 onwards, Banana began using interactive and performance art prominently in her artistic practice. This series captures Banana's various projects and performances. Beginning with her Town Fool activities in Victoria, Banana would often create projects which engaged audience participation. Beginning in the 1990s, she began to create large interactive projects which engaged in research-like activities, under the aegis of the Specific Research Institute. These projects often produced a large number of response forms, which can be found throughout this series, along with reports, certificates of participation, scripts for performances, working drafts and other items. Most items in this series are textual records.

Series is arranged into ten subseries: Bananology and other certificates, Specific Research Institute – But Is It Art?, Specific Research Institute – Proof Positive That Germany Is Going Bananas, Specific Research Institute – Miscellaneous, In the RED/In the BLACK, Futurist Sounds, The WORLD SERIES, A Condensed History of Performance Art, Regifting Bananas, Miscellaneous Projects and Performances.

Bananology and other certificates

Date: 1970-1998 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries originates with Banana's earliest performance art while she was Victoria's Town Fool. It consists of various certificates in bananology (including bachelors and masters degrees) which Anna would give out to individuals who had "Gone Bananas", often after providing Anna with a piece of Banana paraphernalia or a Banana-related fact or story. This activity often took place within the context of her mail art actions, where she would mail the certificates back to networkers who had provided her with banana-related mail. However, it began while she was still Town Fool, prior to or concurrent with her entry into the mail art network.

The subseries consists almost entirely of various certificates, as well as letters to correspondents.

Specific Research Institute – But Is It Art?

Date: 2009-2012 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries consists of documents relating to an interactive art project called "But Is It Art?" that Banana carried out throughout various European cities in the late 2000s and early 2010s. Under the auspices of the Specific Research Institute, Banana (in her role as Dr. Anna Freud Banana) would ask participants to show if various (often banana related) items were, in fact, art.

Subseries contains response forms arranged into various city files where Banana conducted her research, as well as travel ephemera, reports, posters and programs, as well as exhibition documents related to the project.

Specific Research Institute – Proof Positive That Germany Is Going Bananas

Date: 1993-1994 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries arose out of an interactive project that Banana conducted out of Germany in the mid-1990s through her Specific Research Institute called “Proof Positive That Germany is Going Bananas” (often shortened to PPTGISB). Using results from what Banana called “Roar Shack Banana Peel Tests”, as well as personality inventory response forms, interviews and other tests, Banana culminated her research into a large report and exhibit of German banana related items published in 1994.

The series consists of tests, reports, press and promotional materials, as well as banana artworks and correspondence that Anna collected over the course of her travels for this project.

Subseries contains files from various small Specific Research Institute projects conducted by Anna Banana, between 1993 and 2015. Many of these were small surveys of “Banana Culture” which Banana carried out while she was staying in certain regions or cities, as well as newsletters and updates regarding SRI activities.

Files are made up of textual records, mostly newsletters or reports, as well as some posters and response forms.

In the RED/ In the BLACK

Date: 1984 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

With Victoria Kirby, Anna Banana created and performed “In the RED” for InterDADA ’84, a large gathering of neo-dadaists in San Francisco, and at Humbolt University in 1985. “In The BLACK” arose from this performance and was performed later on. These were scripted stage performances by Anna Banana and Victoria Kirby, that explored colour. Banana called the interDADA ’84 performance “the most DADA performance I’ve ever given in my career” in her “Excerpts From a Mail Artist’s Diary” for Lumholt Mail Art Archive.

This subseries consists of documents relating to these performances, including press, scripts, promotional materials, and various drafts and cue sheets.

Futurist Sounds
Date: 1978-1981 (date of creation)
Scope and content: Subseries captures Anna Banana and Bill Gaglione's "Futurist Sound" performances, which were essentially performances of various Italian Futurist performance art pieces, such as Sounds by Francesco Canguillo and Colors by Fortunato De Pero . The two of them went on a number of tours with the performances, including one in Europe in 1978 and across Canada in 1981. This series consists of mostly textual records, including itineraries, programs, posters, and planning documentation, as well as various small props used in the performance.

A Condensed History of Performance Art

Date: 1991-1992 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

A Condensed History of Performance Art was a program put on by Anna Banana in the early 1990s as an introduction to performance art. It was performed for the Aspects of Performance Art series by the Canadian Centre of the Arts at Owen Sound in 1992. Series consists of textual records in the form of scripts and draft scripts, press clippings, research notes, as well as Anna's initial correspondence regarding performance logistics and programs for the Aspects of Performance Art performance series.

Regifting BananasDate: 2015 (date of creation)Scope and content:

In 2015, Anna gave away all of her banana items in an interactive event called “Regifting Bananas.” Each giveaway was accompanied by documentation of what was given away, and to whom. There was also an inventory of banana items for regifting.

Subseries consists of textual records, mainly the inventory and records of regifting.

Miscellaneous Projects and PerformancesDate: 1971-2017 (date of creation)Scope and content:

Subseries contains records of numerous small performances by Banana from the 1970s to the late 2010s. Banana saved only the planning documents, promotional materials or press from these art pieces, which often only hint at what was performed or produced. Some examples include her Town Fool activities, Going Bananas Fashion Contest and First Female Pope performance.

Subseries contains mostly flyers, notes and letters, photocopies, posters, and other printed matter, as well as a fruit hat used in an unknown performance.

Physical description: 35 cm of textual records and 2 binders: 9 cm of graphical and textual materials

Arrangement:

Many performances did not warrant their own series, as they were not documented to the extent that a series was necessary. Therefore, this subseries was created to account for these records. Items are filed according to performance or type of material (if the performance documentation was sparse).

Anna Banana's publications

Date: 1970-2019 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Series is made up of the various periodicals, books and textual items which Banana published over the course of her career. Most of these were published under the aegis of Banana Productions, a company first created while Anna was living in San Francisco. Project files contain magazines, newsletters, and artistamp editions; documents related to the creation of these publications, press and promotional materials; books and binders.

Series is arranged into seven subseries: VILE Magazine, Encyclopedia Bananica, Banana Rag, OOK (One Of a Kind) Books, Artistamp News, International Art Post, and Other publications.

VILE Magazine

Date: 1974-1983 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries is made up of Anna Banana's VILE Magazine and related items, notably two copies of each magazine, as well as related press, ads and promotional materials. VILE Magazine was a response to FILE Magazine (published by General Idea) and its movement away from the mail art scene towards more mainstream artistic practice. VILE ran somewhat irregularly from 1974 to 1983, culminating in a retrospective magazine titled "About VILE". Like FILE, VILE was an artistic parody of LIFE magazine, but often covered challenging subjects, and pushed beyond the sensibilities of conventional thinking. Banana was aided by her then-partner Bill Gaglione, who edited 3 of the 7 editions. Files contain all issues of the magazine, as well as various press clippings, ads, promotional materials and invitations to participate.

Encyclopedia Bananica

Date: 1983-2008 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries contains some parts of Anna Banana's Encyclopedia Bananica, which was made up of Anna's collection of banana related stories and factoids, which were collected over the course of her activities as Anna Banana. Many of the banana related items were given away in the "Regifting Banana" event which Banana held in 2015, but the files in this series were retained, and are likely mere samples of what was once a much larger collection of information.

Items in this subseries include binders with specific stories or projects, and files with other artworks and compiled banana information.

Banana Rag

Date: 1971-2016 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

This subseries is made up of Banana's long running Banana Rag newsletter, which she began in 1971 to provide the general public with information about her activities as Victoria Town Fool. Over the years, it became a means for her to provide information about her mail art activities, and the newsletter itself became a central part of her network presence. It also provided subscribers with information about other mail art opportunities, trends, or exhibitions.

This subseries contains copies of the newsletters, as well as an inventory of the newsletters, some original markups and pasteups, and information about subscribers.

Artistamp News

Date: 1991-2014, Predominant 1991-1995 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Between 1991 and 1995, Anna Banana published Artistamp News, a newsletter which provided information about artistamp production, artists, and networks. There were 8 editions in total. Files contain all of the artistamp news, an inventory of artistamp news, and originals (paste ups) of some volumes.

International Art Post

Date: 1987-2007 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries documents International Art Post, an artistamp publication. Anna Banana published International Art Post (IAP) from the late 1980s to the early 2010s. The International Art Post was made up of periodically published artistamp editions, which were funded by contributing artists. Artists would provide Banana with small scale artworks to be transferred in full colour to perforated gum-paper. These stamps were then given back to the artists for their own use. Files contain predominantly artistamps, but also include advertising materials and preparatory documentation and sketches.

Artist Trading Cards

Date: 2000-2009 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

In the late 1990s, Artists began using the small 2.5-inch by 3.5-inch trading card templates as the basis for a new way to share small format artworks. In the early 2000s, Anna Banana began to create and trade her own cards, amassing a fairly large collection, and producing a significant number of her own card editions. This series is made up of her own creations, as well as cards collected from artists at the trading events which she attended.

This series is mostly made up of trading cards in binders or folders, with some information relating to the development of this art form in the file called "ARTIST TRADING CARDS: The Story." Banana compiled cards into binders either by year or by significance, and kept her own separate from those which she received from others.

Date: 1970 to 2015 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Anna Banana was given and collected much art over the years, much of it related to her own performance and mail art activities, such as large drawings, rubber stamps from Darlene Altschul, The Sticker Dude and others, various stamp art, etc. Items include rubber stamp sheets, large drawings, collage, a binder of collected works, and graphic prints.

Physical description: 5 cm of graphic materials and 1 binder: 9 cm of graphical materials

Arrangement:

The sub-series is made up predominantly of items not arranged with other subseries, and formed a catch-all for artworks received by Banana over the course of her activities not explicitly contained within other series.

Artistamps

Date: 1975-2019 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

In the mid-1980s, Anna Banana began to seriously consider ways that she might be able to create income outside of performance art. Using skills she learned while working at printers and publishers in San Francisco and Vancouver, Banana began to create and sell artistamps, and collected multiple artistamps created by others. Artistamps are a kind of Cinderella stamp used often in mail art, which differ from forgeries or other illegal stamps in that they do not intent do defraud authorities or stamp collectors, but rather are created with the intent to be art. They make up an important aspect of the mail art genre. Banana's activities often included the production and use of artistamps, especially after she gained access to perforation machines and colour printing in the 1980s.

This series is made up of many of her artistamp sheets, as well as various sketches, final drawings, and printer transparencies created during the process of artistamp production, as well as stamps collected from others.

Exhibitions

Date: 1983-2015 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

This series is made up of flyers, exhibition books, reviews and documentation regarding various exhibitions which Anna Banana was involved in creating or curating, such as 20 Years of Fooling Around With A. Banana, The Popular Art of Postal Parody, 45 Years of Fooling Around With A. Banana, and the Color Show. Records were created in the course of the curation of each exhibition, and include letters of introduction, originals and drafts of flyers and exhibition booklets, posters, name tags, and reviews or press of these exhibitions. A number of these exhibitions were retrospectives of Anna's career, while other were curated to show various elements of mail art or performance.

Photographs

Date: 1969-2002 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Series was collected and produced over the course of Anna's career. It is made up of a number of binders and collections of photographs. The five binders mainly show events which Anna organized, or record her artworks, performances or costumes, such as the Banana Olympics of 1975, Columbus Day Parades in San Francisco in the 1970s, and her 1978-9 European Tour with Bill Gaglione. Other files include collected photographs from various mail art network connections and friends, although most are not labeled and so specific individuals are difficult to ascertain. Identifiable people and photographers include Genesis P. Orridge, Montana Rose, Mat Matthews, Mike Slattery, J.A.N Galligan, Irene Dogmatic and others. Photographs are mostly black and white and colour prints, black and white negatives and colour positive slides.

Press

Date: 1968-1988, predominantly 1972-1988 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

As soon as Banana began her performance life as Anna Banana in 1971, she began to collect and distribute information about herself and her events. This series reflects those activities, and includes press releases and posters produced by Banana for her various shows, events and performances, as well as newspaper clippings, photocopies of news stories, magazine articles, and gallery schedules which made mention of her and her activities.

The series is arranged semi-chronologically, with certain events, such as the Banana Olympics or her 1978 Futurist Sound tour with Bill Gaglione meriting their own files.

Collected Publications

Date: 1968-2019 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Series is made up of published materials collected by Anna Banana. Series was collected between 1970 and 2019, from before Anna's beginnings in the mail art network up until the donation of the fonds to UBC.

Many items were created out of mail art collaborations, while others were collected because of reference to Anna's work, reference to the mail art network as a whole, because the creators were friends or colleagues of hers or because the items held personal interest. Banana loosely divided this series into a number of different categories, which were the basis of the subseries found here: Zines, Periodicals, Books, Exhibit Catalogs, and "Best Examples of how Mail Art Evolved." Items which do not fit into these specific categories have been set aside into a subseries labeled "Ephemera".

Physical description: 12.51 m of textual records and other materials

Arrangement:

While Banana's collection certainly contains published material which do not adhere to the above categories, publications are placed into whichever seemed best suited to each specific material. Each file contains a single publication or series of publications, determined by the title of that publication.

Publication status:

Zines

Date: 1970-2019 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries includes items published in small batches, which might have been created using technologies such as Xerox photocopying, and at home binding techniques including staples and sewing, and which are most often in small (i.e. smaller than A4size) formats, or items which Anna defined as zines. Items are often self-published, or published through small collectives.

This subseries can be differentiated from other subseries as a result of the format and the content of the files. For example, it excludes exhibit catalogues, as Banana distinguished in her own filing system between the two, so small, zine-like exhibit catalogue are not included. Files are distinguished by the names of zines or zine collections. It includes one-off booklets, handmade artists poetry books, handmade or custom zines, some handmade "one of a kind books," and regularly published small format zines and newsletters.

Books

Date: 1968-2016 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was created between the late 1960s and 2016, and is made up of collected books. These include published books about various artists, art movements, and collections of essays, as well as artist books, some chap books, self published books of poetry and other small edition books. There is no clear focus to the collection, although mail art, performance art, artist books, and concrete poetry make up a significant portion.

Books are separated into files by name.

Periodicals

Date: 1970-2014 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries was collected between the early 1970s and 2014, and contains more than 250 titles, which mostly relate to the arts or contain references or writings related to Anna Banana or her friends and colleagues, as well as long running mail art or “network” publications. Some periodicals were collected for the course of the publication’s entire lifespan, and others were collected for a specific issue’s relevance to Annas work or to the mail art network.

Subseries files are predominantly magazines, journals, regularly published zines, and newsletters. Publications of the same title are filed together.

Physical description: 2.92 m of textual records

Arrangement:

The distinctions between zine and periodical within this subseries are somewhat blurred so that some periodicals might be considered zines and vice versa. Items were ultimately arranged based both on format as well as on Banana’s original arrangement, so that a regularly published zine which was found with other zines will be located in the Zine series, whereas a regularly published zine which was found with other periodicals will be located in the Periodical series.

Exhibition and Artist Catalogues

Date: 1971-2019 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Subseries is made up of publications collected by Anna Banana, especially books and catalogs, pertaining to exhibitions and collections of artists' work. Banana's involvement with the Mail Art Network often included showing her own work all over Europe and North America, by sending mail art, artistamps, drawings and other works to invitational shows and exhibits. Most of those shows in which she partook are noted with small bookmarks, often in yellow, showing those pages where her work is referenced, although not all of the files in this series pertain to her, or even the mail art network. This subseries spans across genres.

Subseries includes exhibition catalogues, publications relating to specific exhibitions, catalogues by artists, product catalogues, directories, some mail art projects which resulted in an exhibit or show, books published in tandem with an exhibit, as well as documentation about invitational shows or competitions. Banana did not distinguish between any of these items and generally categorized them under "Exhibit Catalogs," "Mail Art Catalogs" or "Artist Catalogs." The distinction between the items in this subseries and those of Books or Zines often seem superfluous and depend greatly on the whims of Banana's own boxing system.

Best Examples of How Mail Art Evolved

Date: 1970-2012 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Anna Banana set this subseries aside in two boxes titled “Best Examples of How Mail Art Evolved,” evidently showing the ways that mail art expanded from its initial scope in the 1960s and 1970s. The bulk of the items in this subseries are dated after the year 2000, detailing some of the latest innovations in the mail art network, as well as various compendiums or encyclopedias of mail artists and their work.

The subseries contains mostly books about mail art, as well as some newspapers, mail art projects, zines, posters and other published material.
