Fonds Description

James E. Thornton fonds. – 1967-2020.

1.4 m of textual records and other materials.

Biographical Sketch

James E. Thornton (b. 1927) received his MA (1967) and PhD (1972) in Adult Education from the University of Michigan. From 1969 until his retirement in 1992, Thornton taught in the Department of Administrative, Adult and Higher Education at the University of British Columbia. His research interests concern the impact of educational, social and economic programs on the development and well-being of the older adult. Current research interests are education for the third age: second careers, retirement, leisure activity, aging in the workforce, and life-span learning and education. At UBC Thornton introduced graduate course in educational gerontology and on aging themes. From 1980 to 1990, he served as co-ordinator for the Faculty of Graduate Studies Committee on Gerontology. The Committee encouraged teaching and research programs in faculties, schools and departments.

Scope and Content

The fonds consists of biographical material (1993-2020), copies of Thornton's thesis (1967) and dissertation (1971), copies of his papers (published and unpublished), books, reports and reprints, as well as audio/visual material.

Included in the biographical material is a self-published autobiography, entitled Telling My Life Story - ... a journey of discovery.

Notes

Acquired from James Thornton by the University Archives in several accessions – the most recent in 2021.

Includes 1 audiocassette, 7 videocassettes, 3 DVDs, 167 photographic prints, 746 photographic slides.

Selected prints are included in UBC Archives' Historical Photograph Database as UBC 114.1. Slides are made available in digital contact-sheet format.

Photographs, audiovisual recordings, and DVDs stored separately.

File/item list available.

CHINA TOUR (1978)

In 1978 James Thornton participated in an adult educators' visit to the People's Republic of China. Organized by UBC's Adult Education Department and the Centre for Continuing Studies, the objective of the tour was to examine how the newly-formed Chinese Government after the fall of the "Gang of Four" would use forms of formal and informal adult education programs and professional training initiatives to repair China's social fabric and revitalize economic structures devastated by the "cultural revolution". Shortly after the UBC group arrived in Shanghai in the summer of 1978, they were joined by a group from the University of Alberta and then continued on a three week tour of China.

This series includes 746 slides taken during the trip, a group photograph and a short description of the tour from Thornton's autobiography. The slides have been removed from their original boxes and transferred into slide sleeves and put into file folders. The original descriptions from the slide boxes have been transferred to the file descriptions.
