Note

Terry Allen Simmons was born 12 April 1946 in Butte, California to parents Daniel F. Simmons and Jeanne Marlow. He had one twin brother, Gary, and a sister, Deborah. After growing up in Yuba City, Simmons earned his undergraduate degree in Anthropology in 1968 as one of the first graduates of the University of California, Santa Cruz. He then moved for his graduate studies at the Geography Department of Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C., earning his Master of Arts in Geography in 1974. Afterwards, under the supervision of the humanistic geographer Yi-Fu Tuan, Simmons wrote a doctoral thesis at the University of Minnesota and in 1979 was awarded a PhD in Geography. While studying for these degrees, Simmons worked as a teaching assistant and lecturer of geography at various programs, including Simon Fraser University, the University of Minnesota, Lakehead University, and the University College of the Fraser Valley. In 1989, Simmons graduated from the Boalt Hall School of Law at the University of California, Berkeley. In 1988 and 1989, Simmons worked as a law clerk in the Land and Natural Resources Division of the U.S. Attorney's Office in San Francisco and as a staff member for the Alaska Supreme Court in Anchorage, Alaska. Afterwards, he worked in Reno, Nevada both as an environmental and natural resources policy consultant and as an attorney practicing primarily in the areas of environmental, natural resources, water, land use, real estate, and business law. Simmons also became a Nevada Supreme Court Settlement judge, mediating appellate cases and actively arbitrating in Nevada trial level courts. After completing his academic degrees, Simmons continued his education by attending short courses and seminars focusing on cultural resource management, hazardous materials handling, and civil mediation. He also regularly taught courses and seminars in natural resources law, civil and criminal prosecution of environmental crimes, and similar topics.

Throughout his life, Simmons was highly involved in environmental activism. The summer of 1968, Simmons spent the summer as a research assistant in the national office of Sierra Club in San Francisco. After moving that fall to Vancouver to undertake graduate studies in the Geography Department of Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C., Simmons was struck by the lack of similar environmental groups in B.C. He contacted local Sierra Club Bulletin subscribers and convened a meeting that led to the incorporation of the Serra Club of B.C. (SCBC). In fall 1969, Simmons was elected the first chairman of SCBC, as well as vice-president of the newly-formed B.C. Environmental Council. At SCBC's first meeting, two of the one hundred members that signed up for the organization were Jim Bohlen and Irving Stowe, who alongside Paul Cote would later become recognized as co-founders of Greenpeace. In 1971, Simmons sailed as one of twelve crewmembers on the boat known as "Greenpeace" for its voyage from Vancouver, B.C. to Amchitka, Alaska to protest U.S. nuclear tests. Then 25 years old, Simmons acted as the group's geographer and legal advisor. This trip is now understood as the founding event of the environmental organization Greenpeace. Simmons did not remain actively involved in Greenpeace after this trip, instead taking part in other environmental activism efforts. In 1970, he acted as the Secretary of the Run Out Skagit Spoilers (ROSS) Committee that fought against Seattle City Light's proposal to raise the Ross Dam by 125 feet. After leaving the role of Secretary, Simmons continued his involvement in ROSS as a member. In 1972, Simmons participated in an anti-war protest in Minneapolis at the University of Minnesota. Charged with aggravated assault against a police officer and rioting, Simmons received a one-year probation. In 1973, Simmons was interviewed as the SCBC vice-chairman on Alaskan pipeline construction activity and later appeared at a hearing of the BC Energy Commission to cross-examine statements made on behalf of the Canadian Petroleum Association. Simmons was appointed as one of six directors to the Forest Research Council of B.C. in 1981 and was a founding member of the Forest History Association of British Columbia in 1982. Simmons stayed an active member in the Forest History Association of British Columbia, serving as director at the time of his passing in fall 2020.

In addition to his involvement in various environmental efforts, Simmons was also Treasurer of the Eugen Rosenstock-Huessy Society, an advisory board member of the Berkely Canadian Studies Program, and an active member of the Vancouver St. John's Anglican Church Learner's Exchange. Simmons passed away in Vancouver on November 14, 2020.

Custodial history

After Terry died, his papers were stored in his locker of his apartment building. They were retrieved by UBC and friends of Terry in 2021 and stored in the UBC Geography Department before they were moved to Library PARC sometime in 2022. They were moved to RBSC in Summer 2023.

Scope and content

The fonds illustrates Terry Simmons' environmental activism and academic research, and also contains some personal records. Environmental activism records primarily reflect Simmons' involvement in the ROSS Committee and include memoranda, correspondence, briefs, reports, and other material accumulated during the High Ross Dam Controversy. Academic research records include grey literature, correspondence, notes, and other material arising from Simmons' research into environmental activism and international ecological issues. Personal records include material pertaining to Terry Simmons himself, and include assorted photographs, artifacts, and other material.

The fonds is arranged into three series: 1. High Ross Dam Controversy records; 2. Academic research records; and 3. Personal records.

Notes

Title notes

- Source of title proper: Title based on the contents of the fonds

Physical condition

Some records are in fragile condition. Please handle carefully.

Arrangement

The fonds arrived with no apparent original order. The archivist created and arranged files to reflect series and chronological order. Where present, the archivist maintained original file titles and the original order of records within files.

Accruals

No further accruals are expected.

Other notes

- Publication status: published
- Physical description: The fonds also includes: 24 photographs, 36 negatives, 22 slides, 8 sound reels, 4 buttons, and 1 cartoon.
- Conservation: The archivist has attempted to remove all rusting inorganic materials from the fonds, but some undoubtedly remain.

Academic research records

Date: 1969-2005, predominant 1973-2004 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Series documents Terry Simmons' academic research, especially into environmental and international ecological issues, as well as Simmons' collaboration with other researchers and involvement in various journals, conferences, and lectures. Topics researched include the High Ross Dam Controversy, the International Joint Commission, and water rights, among others. Some files contain Simmons' research into Indigenous rights in these issues, including material regarding: Raven Tales of the Indigenous peoples of the Pacific Northwest Coast; Bernard Q. Nietschmann's work on cultural geography and with the Miskito people in Central America; and Thomas Talbot Waterman and Alfred Kroeber's cultural anthropology studies and work with Indigenous peoples in California.

Series consists of notes, accumulated copies of primary sources from assorted libraries and archives, grey literature, correspondence, articles, and other material arising from Simmons' research and involvement in academia.

Physical description: 75.5 textual records and other material

Related material:

Files 08-04 to 09-10 contain copies of materials Simmons selected from the University of Vermont Special Collections Charles Ross Collection for his research.
