369 photographs.

over 4700 architectural drawings.

Administrative History

George Lister Thornton Sharp was born in 1880 in London, England and educated at Haileybury. In 1908 he came to Vancouver, and formed a business partnership with Charles Joseph Thompson. Mr. Thompson was also born in London, in 1878. From 1906 to 1908 he was assistant chief architect for the C.P.R. before joining Mr. Sharp to form the architectural firm of Sharp & Thompson. The firm was responsible for the design of such major buildings in Vancouver as the B.C. Electric Building, and over the years played an important role in the development of the built environment of Greater Vancouver. Importantly for UBC's history, Sharp & Thompson won the competition in 1912 for the contract to design the Point Grey campus for the University. The firm built the first four original campus buildings, and became the official architectural firm of the University, a position which it held until late into the 1950's. The company changed its name to Sharp & Thompson, Berwick, Pratt in 1945, when two new partners joined. When Sharp resigned in 1955 the name was changed again to Thompson, Berwick & Pratt. When the firm merged with two engineering companies who had worked with Thompson, Berwick & Pratt on past projects, the name was changed again to Thompson, Berwick, Pratt & Partners. The firm was re-organized and re-named Hemingway Nelson Architects in 1990.

Scope and Content

The fonds comprises the business records of Sharp & Thompson – later Thompson, Berwick, Pratt & Partners – dating from 1912 to 1974. The records consist of signed contracts, specifications, minutes, correspondence, quotations, financial statements, reports, signed Forms of Tender, memoranda, photographs and architectural drawings. They document the planning for and construction of the University of British Columbia buildings designed and overseen by the architectural firm, and also document the architectural firm's activities on buildings in Vancouver, the province of British Columbia and elsewhere. Some of the files represent unsuccessful bids on jobs. There are original, blueprint and ozalid architectural drawings in this collection. The drawings of University buildings consist mainly of original drawings and blueprints. The drawings of buildings in Vancouver and elsewhere are few in number and are mostly ozalid reproductions.

Notes

File list available.

The University Archives received the records in five separate accessions: 1980, 1981, 1985, 1988, and 1990. The first four included textual records, photographs, and architectural drawings; the final accession consisted of 144 tubes containing approximately 3402 architectural drawings.

The file list is in two parts. Part 1 focusses on the textual records, along with the photographs and some architectural drawings. Part 2 provides complete and detailed descriptions of all architectural drawings.

The Canadian Architectural Archives, at the University of Calgary, holds a sizable Thompson, Berwick, Pratt & Partners fonds, containing most of the drawings from the non-UBC projects.

For background information on the firm of Sharp and Thompson and its successors, please see History 545 paper "The Firm that Built Vancouver: An Administrative History of Thompson, Berwick, Pratt & Partners," by Jayne Bellyk, April 14, 1989.

Plans created by Sharp and Thompson / Thompson, Berwick & Pratt for Main Library have been digitized and made available separately.

Vancouver, British Columbia, and Out-of-province Building Files series. – 1912-1972.

12.5 m of textual records.

203 photographs.

ca. 100 architectural drawings.

The series consists of files pertaining to buildings the firm built or altered in Vancouver, elsewhere in British Columbia and outside of the province. Some of the files deal with contracts which the firm did not win. The records include original architectural drawings; photographs; and related correspondence, reports, journals, minutes of committee meetings, forms of tender, quotations, agreements, specifications, certificates of insurance, and schedules of hardware. The records are arranged into sub-series based on the project files, and grouped under subject headings chosen by the architectural firm: Communication, Transportation & Public Utilities; Religious and Funerary; Exhibitions & Spectacles; Residences; Professional; Mercantile; Social & Recreational; Schools; Administrative & Financial; Universities - Canada (excepting the University of British Columbia); Community & Regional; Hotels & Cafes; Government; Industrial. This original order of categorization has been maintained. Some files on projects can be found under two categories, particularly Social & Recreational and Community & Regional. Within these subject headings the projects are arranged alphabetically, and then in chronological order. For some projects, Thompson, Berwick and Pratt created a publicity file, which have been put at the beginning of the files on the particular projects.

Part 2 – Architectural Plans

[Architectural plans, 1912-1974 / Thompson, Berwick, Pratt & Partners]. – Vancouver, BC : The Firm, 1912-1974. -- +4682 plans : manuscript & photocopy ; various scales ; various sizes.

In the fall of 1912, the architectural firm of Sharp and Thompson won the competition for the contract to design the new Point Grey site for the University of British Columbia. The firm built the first four original campus buildings and became the official architectural firm to the university. Over the years the firm evolved into Thompson, Berwick, Pratt and Partners.

The fonds consists of two distinct groups of material. The first includes photographs, proposals, plans, drawings, sketches, surveys, schedules, correspondence and reports for various campus buildings dating from 1912 to 1974. The second group consists of records relating to the firm's many other building projects in Vancouver, British Columbia and elsewhere. The Canadian Architectural Archives, at the University of Calgary, holds a sizable Thompson, Berwick, Pratt and Partners fonds containing most of the non-UBC projects.

UBC Archives received the records in five separate accessions: 1980, 1981, 1985, 1988, and 1990. The first four accessions are described in an file list prepared by Ann Carroll in 1989. The final accession, 144 tubes containing approximately 3402 architectural drawings, is described in an inventory prepared by Jayne Bellyk in 1991. The number of drawings in the 1985 and 1988 accessions is unknown as they are not clearly identified in the inventories.

For related textual records, see Part 1.

1980 Accession

This accession consists of 1,268 original blueprint, whiteprint or linen architectural drawings; 166 photographs of buildings at various stages of construction and related correspondence, specifications and reports. The records date between 1912 and 1926.

- 9-14 University of B.C. - Theological Colleges plan. -- 1913.

1988 Accession

This accession consists of business records of Thompson, Berwick, Pratt & Partners and its precursors pertaining to buildings these architects designed at UBC, in British Columbia, and a few out of province contracts, between 1923 and 1972.

There are a few original architectural drawings included in the files, mostly whiteprints, blueprints and diazos sent to the firm by engineers.

Some documents were disposed of, including shop drawings and detailed electric and mechanical data.

1990 Accession

This accession consists of 144 tubes of rolled drawings or approximately 3,402 individual drawings, including both originals and reproductions, dating from 1923 to 1974. All drawings pertain to building projects completed at UBC, with only a couple of exceptions at the end of this section. Most of the drawings in this accession are working drawings, with some preliminary and perspective drawings appearing in the files. In addition, there are some working drawings for several unbuilt UBC projects. The same building sub-contractors were used consistently throughout the span of TBP&P's corporate life: D.W. Thomson, Mechanical Engineering; Simpson & MacGregor, Electrical Engineering; O. Safir, Structural engineering. In the 1970's this group became the "Partners" when the corporate title changed for the last time [see: Administrative History in the full file list]. Some projects between 1923 and 1974 were actually commissioned by the federal or provincial government rather than the university. As these plans were already separated from their textual project records, and job numbers seldom appeared on the plans or their containers, the archivist has opted to described the plans chronologically as projects, and not as files.
