Dear Kris:

With respect to your letter of January 15th concerning special glasses you are required to have due to the lighting in your work place, I have checked this problem out with the Worker's Compensation Board. They have advised me that you should consult your doctor and if he/she feels your working situation is responsible for the present condition of your eyes they can file a report with the WCB to the effect. It will then be investigated and if the WCB feels the claim is valid the employer will bear the cost of your glasses.

This sounds like it might be worth while checking out.

Yours truly,
