A SHORT HISTORY OF DÜSSELDORF

The name of Düsseldorf is mentioned for the first time in an authentic document about eight hundred old. It was then a small fishing village, but the Counts of Berg soon recognized the advantages of its situation from the point of view of trade, and granted it a municipal charter after winning the Battle of Worringen in 1288. In 1380 the County of Berg became a duchy, and Düsseldorf was selected as its capital in 1383.

Eventful times followed, and peace and good order were not restored until the days of Johann Wilhelm II, who ruled from 1690 to 1716. He was Duke of Jülich and Berg and Elector Palatine, and is still remembered locally under the name of "Jan Wellem". He was a great patron of the arts and sciences, and the equestrian statue of him in front of the Town Hall by the court sculptor Grupello was erected by his grateful subjects. The collection of pictures made by him, which was then famed far and wide and which was destined to form the nucleus of the Alte Pinakothek in Munich one day, led the Elector Palatine Karl Theodor to found an Academy of Art in 1768 which is still in existence. The best-known Directors of this Academy were Lambert Krahe, Peter von Cornelius and Wilhelm von Schadow.

Düsseldorf was assigned to Prussia at the Congress of Vienna in 1814, and Greater Düsseldorf was formed in 1910 by the amalgamation of the suburbs. It is now a large city with more than half a million inhabitants. Its size may be judged from the fact that it occupies more than 25 miles of the banks of the Rhine.

It may safely be asserted that a stay in Düsseldorf is an interesting experience. Düsseldorf enjoys great popularity as an optimistic town on the Rhine and a centre of art and fashion.

Its world fame is due to steel and iron and the beautiful large exhibitions. The World Exhibition of 1902 and the "Gesolei" Exhibition of 1926 are still remembered by every visitor.

Great National Exhibition of the Reich

Rijkstentoonstelling

Grande exposition nationale du Reich

Exhibition on the Rhine, Industry and Romance a show of industry and new raw materials in 31 big halls, a parklike garden show with magnificent waterplays and illuminated fountains, an exhibition town, consisting of 110 cottages especially built for this exhibition.

This show covers the remarkable area of 8580000 sq. f. and has been designed in a most attractive and original manner.

You will see the new German raw materials, their production and use, first time exhibited.

All this calls you to come to Düsseldorf, the charming town on the Rhine and to see the Rhineland. Germany's Great National Exhibition „Schaffendes Volk“ (‘Producing Nation’).

This you must come to see on your this year's continental trip!

For foreign travellers 60% reduce on German railways.

Düsseldorf, de stad der industrie en der opgewekte levenslust aan den Nederrijn, roept ter groote Rijkstentoonstelling „Schaffendes Volk“ op. Een kolossaal terrein van 780 000 M² bevat een 280 000 M² groote bloemententoonstelling, met volkomen origineele, speciale tuinen en bloemperken, met waterwerken en verlichte fontein. 31 groote hallen bevatten eene nijverheidstentoonstelling, di voor de eerste mal de wonderen der nieuwe Duitse materialen toont. Eene tentoonstellingsstad met 110 modelwoningen geeft de huidige bouwwijze en woninginrichting in Duitschland weer.

Een groot amusementspark met de nieuwste attracties: golfbad, liliputspoor, lichtorgels, talrijke restaurants met muziek en dans — alles aan den Rijn — dienen het vermaak. Düsseldorf hoopt in dezen aanlokkelijken tentoonstellingszomer zijne Hollandsche bureu dikwijls te mogen begroeten.

Düsseldorf aussi, ville élégante de la mode et des beaux arts à l'ouest de l'Allemagne au bord du Rhin, se présente cette année comme ville d'une exposition grandiose: La grande exposition nationale du Reich „Schaffendes Volk“ («Un peuple à l'oeuvre»). Industrie, horticulture et colonisation intérieure sont les grands sujets de cette exposition, ayant une surface de 780000 m² et montrant 31 grandes salles et 110 maisons modèles dans une ville d'exposition.

Le rythme des machines accompagne les chansons rhénaniennes et les gaies mélodies de danse, des jeux d'eau et des magnifiques fontaines lumineuses jettent leurs eaux vers le ciel nocturne. L'élégance des restaurants de l'exposition, le sérieux de la technique et la vie joyeuse dans le Luna-Parque — vous invitent pour un voyage à Düsseldorf!

Pour les touristes étrangers 60% de réduction de prix aux chemins de fer allemands.

Figure 130 ft. high on the great illuminated fountain on the Main Festival Ground of the Exhibition on the Rhine

The great Reich Exhibition of 1937 "The Nation at Work", Düsseldorf which, in the first year of the Second Four Years Plan, will provide the first show of Germany's working materials, and Germany's planning of national territory and settlement policy, and include a large horticultural show in keeping with the scenery of the Lower Rhenish plain, should be everyone's destination in 1937. The Exhibition will provide Düsseldorf with a new municipal quarter and a park with illuminated and other fountains, enchanting rose gardens and fine restaurants. Visitors will find much to surprise them even after the Exhibition.

The picture presented by the streets of Düsseldorf is characterized by wealth of colour, abundance of lights and good taste.

The principal attraction both for visitors and the local people is the Königsallee. Have you ever enjoyed all the many features of this wonderful street? In the afternoon, for instance, when pretty women promenade beneath the flowering chestnut trees in all the latest fashions and examine the tastefully arranged window displays with critical eyes?

Have you ever strolled along the Königsallee on a mild evening when the air is so balmy, and the attractive sound of music and gay laughter is wafted from all the cafés and dancing halls?

If not, come and see for yourself. Pay a visit to Düsseldorf and drink your coffee on one of the terraces whence you can watch the passing throng. Or join the stream of strollers in the evening when the streets are gleaming with lights.

Visit one of the restaurants. Everywhere you will find people enjoying themselves, and you will never be at a loss, for you will feel at home wherever you are.

Düsseldorf provides everything to satisfy even the most fastidious requirements, including good cafés, bars and artists' taverns with the most up-to-date and cosy interior decorations and first-class music, good restaurants of every size with the choicest cuisine and excellent wine, beer and other beverages, good cabarets and dancing establishments with variety programmes well known far beyond the limits of the town, and good hotels of every kind to suit every pocket.

Anyone in search of a cosy corner should visit the Old Town where the old taverns are redolent of an atmosphere of cheery companionship and natural gaiety which appeals to every visitor. Every brand of beer, including "Düssel" and "Helles", is on tap, and the dishes on the menu-card are good and inexpensive. Try one of the specialities of these taverns in the Old Town, such as "ne halve Hahn" (a roll with cheese and Düsseldorf mustard), or "Riefkoken", mussels cooked in water, wine or butter with a slice of genuine Rhenish black bread, "Himmel-on Aed" (a purée of potatoes and apples), or a pickled egg with oil and vinegar.

These dishes are best washed down with a "Samtkragen" or a glass of "Düssel beer"

Make your own choice of the great variety of dishes provided, and rest assured that you will be well served.

Good meals are inexpensive in DÜSSELDORF.

Group in the Riflemen's Procession

The popular festivals in Düsseldorf provide an excellent idea of the charm of Lower Rhenish gaiety. One of the most famous is the ancient Düsseldorf Rifle Meeting held in July every year on the Rhine meadows. A gay throng assembles in the gaily coloured and richly decorated Riflemen's Tent which is surrounded by all the life and movement of a Rhenish kermesse.

The St. Martin's Day Festival held in November has a unique atmosphere of its own. Young and old enjoy themselves in the warm gleam of the coloured lanterns, and thousands accompany the mounted "Martin's Man" through the illuminated streets. A beautiful festival where serious dignity is combined with harmless gaiety.

THE DÜSSELDORF CARNIVAL is something special. The Düsseldorf art students set their stamp on this festival of joy and exuberance. The Rose Monday Procession, on the Monday before Ash Wednesday, led by Prince Carnival and his Princess Venetia, escorted by the City Guards, is an artistic event of a really unique kind.

Düsseldorf's fame as a centre of theatrical enterprise has been maintained since the days of Karl Immermann who applied his energies to the intellectual support of the drama. The Düsseldorf Playhouse, which enjoyed a great reputation for decades under the management of Luise Dumont, has preserved its traditions. Besides this the Düsseldorf Municipal Theatres make every effort to maintain close contact between the people and the theatre.

The State Academy of Art

Düsseldorf is famous as an artist's town in every part of the Continent. It was and still is the home of many well-known artists.

The State Academy of Art, one of the few in Germany, makes Düsseldorf the centre of artistic work in Western Germany. To it many generations of artists owe their first inspiration and artistic technique.

Famous festivals are given in the Malkasten which was already the rendezvous of intellectual Germany at the time of the philosopher Jacobi. Among those who frequented them were Goethe, Herder, Wieland, the brothers Humboldt, Iffland, Diderot, Count Goltstein, and Baron von Hompesch. Here the artists organized festivals in perfect taste.

Since the famous "Lower Rhenish Music Festivals" more than a century ago Düsseldorf's fame as a musical centre has spread far and wide. The names of the composers Schumann and Brahms are inseparably connected with Düsseldorf's musical life. Consequently music is one of the principal features of the intellectual life of the town, and the present-day music festivals and brilliant opera performances under gifted management take the lead in Western Germany.

Düsseldorf's Exhibitions

are of very great economic importance. The town's good situation as a traffic centre on the Rhine, the accommodation available and the excellent economic conditions enable most successful exhibitions to be held. As long ago as 1811, or more than 125 years ago, far-sighted industrialists from Solingen, Remscheid and Wuppertal recognized the advantages of Düsseldorf in this respect. Further exhibitions followed in the course of the century, and the Great World Exhibition of 1902 was probably the most striking revelation of the advantages of Düsseldorf as a town for exhibitions.

The "Gesolei" Exhibition for Public Health, Social Welfare and Physical Exercises which was visited by 7,500,000 people is still remembered by everyone.

In 1937 the great Reich Exhibition "The Nation at Work" will demonstrate that Düsseldorf is one of the leading towns for exhibitions in Germany.

Business Report

Düsseldorf's economic foundations are solidly constructed. The heart of the town is surrounded by large industrial undertakings. Besides the machine, iron and steel-working industries Düsseldorf boasts the largest bottle manufactory in the world and one of the best-known chemical works. The streets are lined with the administrative buildings of large and important industrial undertakings and associations. Names such as Poensgen, Henkel, Heye, Haniel, Lueg, Schiess, Ehrhardt and others indicate Düsseldorf's economic importance. The Reich motor road runs close to the town and excellent feeder roads enable motor traffic to join and leave it without difficulty.

Reich motor road near Düsseldorf

The port facilities with about 39,300 feet of available water front, 70 electric cranes, an annual turnover of more than 2,000,000 metric tons and direct access to the sea offers very great economic possibilities. In Düsseldorf, besides important and many-sided industrial undertakings, there are over 1,000 commercial firms trading with other parts of Europe and overseas countries which thus make Düsseldorf the commercial emporium for the extensive hinterland.

Benrath, near Düsseldorf. The only rococo palace with a park in Western Germany (built 1756—75 by Pigage for the Elector Karl Theodor)

Week-end trips may be made to the following places, among others, in the environs of Düsseldorf: Benrath and Kaiserswerth are reached by tram or the Rhine Tram Company's motor boats. The old town of Zons on the Lower Rhine by the pleasure steamers of the Cologne-Düsseldorf Steamship Company.

Kaiserswerth, near Düsseldorf. An imperial palace built 1184—94 in the reign of the Emperor Friedrich Barbarossa Düsseldorf is the starting-point for steamer trips to the romantic Rhine Valley and on the Lower Rhine. Direct motor coach services, good train services and excellent motor roads connect Düsseldorf with the Bergisch Land, the Middle and Lower Rhine, the nearer part of the Eifel, etc.
