G. OSMOND HYDE

Born December 17, 1898 in Downey, Idaho, where he maintains his legal residence. Veteran of World War I, during which he served approximately one year in France.

Graduated from George Washington University Law School, Washington, D. C., in 1926. Member of the Bar of the highest court in the District of Columbia and in his native state of Idaho, and of the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Has served the United States Government as a lawyer for over 20 years, during which time he has appeared before over 60 judges in

United States courts located throughout the length and breadth of the nation.

During the major part of World War II, as a Special Assistant to the Attorney General of the United States he has been a member of the War Frauds Section of the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice, where he has been engaged in the prosecution of many large corporations and individuals charged with defrauding the United States in connection with their contracts for the production and delivery of materials used in the prosecution of the war. He has been highly successful in this prosecution of wartime profiteers. In that activity he represented the United States in the successful prosecution of Samuel Dunkel and Company, et al, of New York City, who were found guilty in the U. S. Court at Albany, N.Y., of a conspiracy to defraud the United States in the manufacture and delivery of defective dehydrated eggs (powdered eggs), used to feed members of the Armed Forces serving in foreign lands and for lend-lease purposes. The transactions involved in excess of $1,000,000. Certain officers of the Corporation and others associated with them in the enterprise were given long jail sentences and heavy fines were imposed on all the defendants.

He conducted the Grand Jury inquiry into the activities of Commander John D. Corrigan, who as an officer in the United States Naval Reserve had been the subject of an investigation by the War Investigating Committee of the U. S. Senate, then headed by Senator Harry S. Truman, now President of the United States. This Grand Jury investigation resulted in the indictment of Corrigan, his business associate and his industrial engineering firm of Corrigan, Osburne & Wells of New York City, as well as the Carl L. Norden Co. of New York City, manufacturers of the Norden Bombsight, which was used extensively during the last war, and two officers of that corporation. The indictments returned in this matter charged conspiracies to defraud the United States of its right to the honest, faithful and unbiased services of its officers and employees.

Mr. Hyde was borrowed from the Department of Justice during the past summer by the Special Committee of the House of Representatives which investigated food shortages and black market practices. He was Chief Counsel of this Committee, which conducted intensive hearings throughout the nation. When the Chairman of this Committee, Hon. Clinton P. Anderson, was named Secretary of Agriculture in the President's Cabinet, Mr. Hyde returned to his position in the Department of Justice and soon thereafter was assigned by Attorney General Tom C. Clark to assist in the prosecution of the major Japanese war criminals.

Chief of War Frauds Section, Department of Justice, 1942.
Liaison Officer of Department of Justice on Far Eastern war crimes prosecution.

When in 1935 Mr. Darsey joined the staff of the Litigation Division of the National Recovery Administration, he was placed in charge of their Regional Office in Dallas, Texas, and there he handled litigation in the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and New Mexico for the duration of the NRA. He then became Trial Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, where he participated in the trial of anti-trust and price discrimination cases until selected by the Attorney General to head the War Frauds Prosecutive Program of the Department of Justice in May of 1942. Serving in the capacity of Chief of the War Frauds Section of the Department of Justice, Mr. Darsey, in the three and a half year period from 1942 to 1945, supervised and directed the successful prosecution of over 1700 cases throughout the United States. Under his direction the War Frauds Section sustained a "batting average" of 95 per cent in convictions.

In the fall of 1945 Attorney General Tom C. Clark named Mr. Darsey as his personal representative and as Liaison Officer for the Department of Justice on Far Eastern war crimes prosecution. In such capacity Mr. Darsey represented the Attorney General in the development of the policy now obtaining in the prosecution of major war criminals in Japan. During the evolution of this policy he was sent to Nuremberg by the Attorney General and the War Crimes Office of the War Department to make a survey of the developments and experiences in that theatre in the prosecution of the major war criminals.

When Mr. Joseph B. Keenan was appointed Chief of Counsel for the prosecution of the major war criminals he named Mr. Darsey as his Executive Assistant, in which capacity Mr. Darsey organized the original staff which is now engaged in the discharge of this responsibility.

Mr. Darsey was reared in a background of public service, his father having served his State in the capacities of State Representative and Senator, Solicitor General and Judge of Spalding County Courts for a number of terms.
