BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

Geoff Meggs is a Vancouver journalist who began his career as an oil and gas reporter and wire service editor. In 1978, he was appointed editor of The Fisherman, a publication of the United Fisherman and Allied Workers Union. His special investigative reports on environmental issues, aboriginal rights and government fisheries policy have won several awards. In 1990, he was appointed as communications director for the Hospital Employees Union.

SCOPE/CONTENTS

The fonds consists of a final draft of Salmon: The Decline of the British Columbia Fishery which includes footnotes that were deleted in the published version; cassettes (33) and transcripts of interviews used in research for the book; and disks (18) including the various drafts of the book.
