1,865 maps

Biographical Sketch

Bob Harris was born in England in 1922. After he served with the Royal Engineers during World War II, he graduated with a degree in Civil Engineering from the University of London in 1948. He was later married to Rita in July 1948 and sailed to Canada that same year. In 1950 Mr. Harris and his wife moved to Vancouver where he worked for 25 years for the Dominion Bridge Company. Then, in 1975 he moved to the Structural Engineering Company of Buckland & Taylor where he remained until his death in 1998. He was responsible for the design and/or erection of several bridges in the Vancouver area, namely Granville, Second Narrows, Oak Street and Port Mann Bridges. He was a member of the B.C. Mountaineering Club, North Shore Hikers, the Vancouver Naturalist Historical Society, and a volunteer Warden for Ecological Reserve Number 48. He was also commissioned to provide hiking trails (a total of 75) for B.C. Outdoors Magazine. R.C. (Bob) Harris was an engineer by profession but an historian at heart, who enjoyed the challenge of finding all the old trails in the field. He spent over 20 years visiting the Provincial Archives and the Department of Lands in Victoria, accumulating a large mass of maps, diaries and fieldbooks of the early explorers, surveyors and road builders, geologists and miners.

Scope and Content

Fonds consists of cartographic materials relating to reconnaissance trips taken by R.C. Harris incorporating old trails on current maps. While the inclusive dates of this collection are from 1835 - 1981, the majority of these maps were created from 1880 -1930. The items naturally fall into a classification system due to the organization of the maps through a personal classification system as maintained by R.C. Harris. The maps were sorted into trays of a map cabinet with small stickers on the outside of those trays indicating its contents. The decision has been made to honour this system and maintain the organization of this map collection. The collection is comprised of about 17 trays from map cabinet shelves containing maps, both historic and those drawn up by Mr. Harris for reconnaissance trips, incorporating old trails on current maps. The maps originate from his estate library that contains extensive research material on B.C. historical trails and events concerning the fur trade, gold rushes, Royal Engineers and early mining. There are also numerous 20th century maps of B.C., mostly topographic, lands and mining of various series. There are numerous air photos, microfilm mining records, and a number of partial maps, titled and untitled, but showing a catalogue number or Legal Surveys serial no. These partial copies of pre-emptions, and lots were used by Mr. Harris to locate the Brigade or Indian or other trail in his effort to find them on the ground today and to enter them on his own maps. There are also over 150 maps that Mr. Harris used for articles and lectures. It has been estimated that perhaps 10% of the collection is original material with the rest comprising copies.

Intellectual access to the arrangement of the maps is provided by the series level descriptions in which there are a total of 16.

Source of Supplied Title

Title is based on contents of fonds.

Custodial History

Prior to the transfer to the University of British Columbia Special Collections, these series of maps remained with R.C. Harris at his residence. In January 2000, Mr. Bruce Ward, secretary of the Map Society of British Columbia, and friend of R.C. Harris, donated these maps to the University of British Columbia Special Collections Library.

Accruals

Other records documenting the work of R.C. Harris will be accrued at a later date by the Special Collections Division of the University of British Columbia Library.

FONDS DESCRIPTION

1970-1998

11.59 m of textual records. – maps and other material.

Robert (Bob) C. Harris fonds

Bob Harris was born in England in 1922 and served with Great Britain in World War II as a Sapper with the Royal Engineers. He graduated from the University of London in 1948 with a degree in Civil Engineering and later that year he and Rita were married and sailed to Canada where they would settle in Toronto. Once in Toronto, Bob found a job with Ontario Hydro but two years later he and Rita would move to Vancouver where Bob was offered a job at the Dominion Bridge Company. He worked there for twenty-five years. He eventually became a chief engineer and in 1975 he went to work for Buckland & Taylor, a Structural Engineering Company where he would continue working and later consulting until he died February 5th 1998. While at Buckland & Taylor he was the engineer or project manager for hundreds of projects including the Port Mann Bridge, Fraser River Bridge, Second Narrows Bridge, the Kelowna Floating Bridge, the Grouse Mountain Tramway, and the 31 storey Toronto-Dominion Tower in Vancouver. Also amongst his hundreds of engineering projects were a number of mills, arena's, distilleries, breweries, and churches, many being in rural settings scattered throughout British Columbia. These rural projects, coupled with Bob's love of hiking and history and his kinship with the Royal Engineers led him to taking an interest in Hudson Bay Brigade and First Nation's trails. As Bob's widow Rita explains it, he looked at his work trips to remote locales across the province as an opportunity to research and hike as many of B.C.'s historic trails as he could. He approached these trips the same way he would have as a Sapper with the Royal Engineers in that he would conduct complete reconnaissance of the regions that he was heading into, researching just as much about the history of the areas as the geographical lay of land. Over the years he accumulated an extremely impressive collection of material relating to the history of British Columbia. His interest in these areas led Bob to become a member of the North Shore Hikers, the Vancouver Natural History Society, the Historic Map Society of B.C and was also a volunteer Warden for Ecological Reserve Number 48. All of these passions would culminate as his life progressed to the point where he became involved in preservation and conservation in B.C.

The fonds consists of multiple media material used by Harris to research the historic trails of British Columbia including First Nations trails and Hudson Bay Brigade trails. The items themselves consist of maps, surveys, plans, aerial photos, correspondence, photos, topographical notes, magazine and newspaper clippings, Harris' research notes, books, reports, brochures, photocopied history, and critiques of books on the history of British Columbia. This fonds reflects thirty years of research, mapping, and hiking almost all of British Columbia's historic Brigade and First Nation's trails. Books have been kept in the relevant series. Of the 138 books in this fonds, 82 are annotated. The books that have been annotated are indicated as such in the finding aid. This fonds is in addition to the Robert (Bob) C. Harris Historic Map Collection which consists of 1,850 large maps and plans of varying sizes.

The geographic regions of British Columbia that comprise eight of the series, were determined by geographer Brett McGillivray in Geography of British Columbia: People and Landscapes in Transition (2005, UBC Press).

Title based on the provenance of the fonds.
